Center of the American Experiment's mission is to build a culture of prosperity for Minnesota and the nation. Our daily pursuit is a free and thriving Minnesota whose cultural and intellectual center of gravity is grounded in the principles of free enterprise, limited government, individual freedom, and time-tested American virtues. Through research, a stream of publications, op-eds and other media, public forums and legislative engagement, we work to create a new climate in which free market and cooperative ideas - once known as classically liberal ideas - are better understood, appreciated and applied. We offer leaders the intellectual ammunition they need to bring meaningful change; our efforts continue to make a tangible difference in the lives of Minnesotans. Center of the American Experiment is a non-partisan 501(c)(3) tax-exempt, education organization. Contributions are tax-deductible to the extent allowed by law.

Form 990 (2017)

Form 990, Part III, Line 4a:

Minnesota Economy Project The Minnesota Economy Project was launched in 2016. Its goal is to educate Minnesotans to the fact that the state's economic performance in recent years has not been good, in order to build public and legislative support for lower taxes and less onerous regulation. In 2016, the Center published a comprehensive analysis of Minnesota's economic performance in the 21st Century by Dr. Joseph Kennedy. In 2017, we published the first in a series of annual updates to that paper. We have publicized the findings of the 2016 and 2017 papers with press conferences, radio and television appearances, op-eds in dozens of newspapers, radio ads on dozens of radio stations, three internet videos that have now exceeded 1.2 million views within the State of Minnesota, town meetings and other public appearances, and posts on the Center's web site and Facebook page. These publicity efforts will continue in 2018 with new radio ads, op-eds, and so on. In addition, the Center will publish in early 2018 a study of Minnesota's estate tax, which will conclude that Minnesota could abolish its estate tax without losing any significant amount of net tax revenue, and might actually gain tax revenue. A comprehensive analysis of the current state of Minnesota's economy, with projections for the future, will be published in late 2018. Our policy goals include abolition of the estate tax, spending restraint to allow tax cuts, personal and corporate income tax rate cuts, regulatory reform, and promoting pension transparency and reform. Other Center projects will also contribute to a stronger Minnesota economy.

Form 990, Part III, Line 4b:

Thinking Minnesota Magazine Thinking Minnesota is an important communications vehicle for the Center, with a base circulation around 80,000. The Center's goal is to continue to build circulation while using the magazine to spread conservative ideas and promote the Center. Sharp content and compelling graphics have driven the popularity of Thinking Minnesota. In order to reduce the net cost of the magazine, we have secured a less expensive printer for 2018, and have contracted with an experienced magazine advertising salesperson, on a commission basis, to sell ads in Thinking Minnesota. Thinking Minnesota broadly advances the policy goals on which the Center is working. It also promotes the Center and exposes new potential donors to our work.

Form 990, Part III, Line 4c:

Quarterly Lunch Forums The Center continues its tradition of bravely addressing important and timely topics. Quarterly lunch forums allow supporters of the Center to participate in person, and feel that they are part of the Center. They provide a unique opportunity to disseminate conservative ideas in an intensive, personal way. We select speakers based on availability and topic interest and we will conduct the 2018 forums with the same format we have used in recent years. We will distribute transcripts of forums to a mailing list of 2,000 to 3,000, and will feature forum speakers and programs in Thinking Minnesota.

Government Accountability Traffic Congestion The Government Accountability Project seeks to hold state and local government units and agencies accountable for waste, inefficiency and corruption In 2017 and 2018, the focus of the Government Accountability Project is traffic congestion in the Twin Cities The objective is to educate Twin Cities residents to the fact that the traffic congestion they experience is extraordinary, and it is caused by deliberate political decisions made by unelected government agencies Traffic congestion is a good issue to highlight the overreach of the administrative state because it is an annoyance that Twin Cities residents constantly experience In 2017, the Center published a report by Randal O'Toole titled "Twin Cities Traffic Congestion It's No Accident " We promoted that report and a web page devoted to traffic congestion, MNCongestion com, with billboards, radio ads in the Twin Cities market, op-eds and bumper stickers In 2018, we will continue to use billboards, radio ads and op-eds to draw attention to the congestion issue, and to the fact that Twin Cities traffic congestion is the result of poor policy decisions Our policy goals are to adequately fund highway construction and congestion relief, defeat Southwest Light Rail Transit and other light rail lines, and reverse a trend toward replacement of traffic lanes with bicycle lanes

Great Jobs Without a Four-Year Degree The Great Jobs Without a Four-Year Degree Project commenced in 2017 Its purpose is to encourage more young people and their parents to consider alternatives to conventional four-year degree programs, in the form of apprenticeships, technical schools, certificate programs, the military, and others The project is ambitious it aims both to help young people by encouraging them to pursue lucrative and rewarding career paths, and also to benefit employers and Minnesota's economy by addressing the "skills gap" that restricts productivity The Great Jobs project includes multiple elements The Center is working with educational institutions, employers, unions, academics and others to coordinate the efforts of groups working to promote similar goals, and to publicize the work done by those groups The Center's approximately biweekly email communications are directed at this audience At the same time, the Center's public information campaign is aimed directly at young people and their parents The Center's public information campaign includes a web page, GreatJobsMN com, radio ads, op-eds, posts on the Center's web and Facebook sites, public meetings, and research papers that are promoted with press conferences, follow-up op-eds, and so on In 2017, the Center published a paper by Dr Amanda Griffith, a labor economist, that showed that many high-skilled occupations in fields like manufacturing, construction and health care can be expected to out-earn the average college graduate in Minnesota over the course of a career In 2018, the Center will use social media to disseminate that message to many thousands of young people in Minnesota Our policy goal is greater public focus and a higher appropriations priority for technical education In addition, the Center is developing a legislative package in support of apprenticeship and manufacturing

Minnesota Regulatory Project The Minnesota Regulatory Project, commenced in 2017, seeks to educate Minnesotans on the need for less, and better, regulation In October 2017, the Center released a paper by Steve Hayward and Peter Nelson on Minnesota's "green" energy politics titled "The High Cost of Failure " The Center publicized that paper's findings with a press conference, multiple op-eds, a cover story in Thinking Minnesota, and a statewide radio campaign Those outreach efforts on "green" energy will continue through 2018 In 2018, the main focus of the Regulatory Project will be mining The Center's objective is to build public support for development of mineral resources in northern Minnesota The Center plans to release a major paper in support of mining in northern Minnesota in the summer of 2018 The report will describe the vast mineral resources in northern Minnesota, will argue that mining can and will be conducted in an environmentally responsible manner, and will describe the tremendous economic benefits that will flow from developing Minnesota's mineral resources The mining report will be the cover story in the Summer 2018 issue of Thinking Minnesota and will be publicized with op-eds, news stories, public meetings, and a video The Center will conduct statewide radio campaigns that will explain why Minnesotans should support mining even though they may not live in the northern part of the state Our policy goals include regulatory approvals for mining projects and reduction or elimination of wind and solar energy mandates

Employee Freedom Educated Teachers The Educated Teachers Project seeks to educate Minnesota's teachers with regard to the use of their dues by Education Minnesota and with regard to the choices legally available to them concerning union membership The U S Supreme Court will decide the Janus case in June 2018 Observers expect that the Court will hold that public employees cannot be required either to join a union as a condition of employment, or to pay a "fair share" fee in lieu of union dues This will liberate public employees in states like Minnesota to leave the union, if they so choose The Center will conduct an information program via letter, email, social media, web site and radio to inform teachers of their rights, and also to inform them as to what the union is really doing with their money-supporting left-wing causes, not representing members Our policy goals include communicating the use of dues by the teachers unions, informing teachers about their freedom of choice, paycheck protection, and narrowing the scope of collective bargaining

Greater Minnesota Initiative The Greater Minnesota Initiative seeks to extend the Center's influence in Greater Minnesota, to encourage and facilitate the trend toward conservatism in Greater Minnesota, and to enhance the Center's fundraising in Greater Minnesota We plan to hire a Greater Minnesota coordinator in 2018 who will be responsible for identifying small groups of people in approximately 20 Greater Minnesota cities to represent the Center in their localities These "pioneers" will disseminate Center materials, sign people up for Thinking Minnesota and our emails, arrange public meetings for Center staff as well as meetings with potential donors, and provide feedback to us on issues relevant to their locales This effort will be supplemented, as in the past, with radio ads across the state and op-eds in numerous newspapers (more than 90 in 2017) Our policy goals include accelerating the process whereby rural Minnesota is becoming more self-consciously conservative across a broad range of issues, including but not limited to mining and other forms of natural resource development, agriculture, and energy
